see things

When metal is heated during forging, at the highest temperature it looks incandescent to our eyes. For us, White Heat is the state in which the character is forged. With our collection, we create purist glasses that describe the essence of a person.

A human being is a combination of body, thoughts, and experiences. Our glasses come into being in a similar way. Shapes are made from raw materials and worked until the clean designs finally become a reality. All this is shaped by human hands. We believe that this component and the change made by the people make the glasses something extraordinary right from when they are made.

With this collection, we wanted to re-consider the material that our glasses and we as human beings are made of. It's a look at what shapes us and what makes people and glasses into characters.
